AFFI Selects Brynn Horne to Lead Its Member Services Department

McLean, Va. – American Frozen Food Institute (AFFI) President and CEO Kraig R. Naasz today announced the selection of Brynn Horne to lead AFFI's member services department. Ms. Horne is joining AFFI on Oct. 6, 2014, as director of member services.

Horne most recently served as business development manager for AFFI associate member red24 Inc., a global crisis management assistance company. She previously served as associate at Blakey & Agnew, LLC, and as the executive assistant to the president and CEO of the General Aviation Manufacturers Association.

"The American Frozen Food Institute is pleased to welcome Brynn Horne as the newest addition to our outstanding staff team," said Naasz. "Brynn brings a strong appreciation for the value proposition AFFI offers its members and her business development experience will assist us in offering even greater value to AFFI's more than 500 members."

In her role as director of member services, Horne will oversee the Institute's member service functions, including member recruitment, retention, sponsorship and affinity programs.

Horne received her undergraduate degree in public relations from Valparaiso University and her event management certificate from George Washington University.
